

New Destiny Housing Wins Bank of America Neighborhood Builder Award

2011 NEIGHBORHOOD BUILDER!

Awarded by
Bank of America

Bank of America named New Destiny Housing as one of its 2011 New York City Neighborhood Builders[®], the nonprofit category of its Neighborhood Excellence Initiative[®]. New Destiny was one of two New York City recipients to receive $200,000 in unrestricted grant funding as well as strategic leadership training with other nonprofit leaders from 44 communities across the country and London.

New Destiny is honored to be recognized by Bank of America for its commitment and leadership in developing affordable housing. For 17 years we have been focusing on creating long-term housing solutions for one of New York City's most vulnerable homeless populations – survivors of domestic violence and their children.

According to Carol Corden, Executive Director:

"On this Thanksgiving, New Destiny is grateful to all of our supporters and donors who give so generously throughout the year. We are particularly thankful for the Neighborhood Builders award. It not only recognizes the importance of our work, but also provides scarce, yet critical general operating funding and leadership development training that will allow us to improve our capacity to provide more safe, affordable housing for families fleeing domestic violence."

Carol Corden, New Destiny Executive Director, accepts the Neighborhood Builders Award from Bank of America New York City Market President, Jeff Barker, at an awards ceremony on November 16, 2011.
